

David L Nieland

Subject: Assistant Professor - Wildlife Biologist

Teaching responsibilities will include wildlife toxicology, toxicology, upper division wildlife and environmental biology courses, other specialty courses, and introductory biology courses for majors and non-majors. Undergraduate advising of wildlife/conservation biology majors will be required. The successful candidate will develop a research program in wildlife or environmental biology involving undergraduate and graduate students and will collaborate with other wildlife/conservation biologists.

Required Qualifications

- Ph.D. or ABD (with Ph.D. by August 2015) in a related field (Degree must be from a regionally accredited or internationally accredited/government certified university).
- Evidence of active research in wildlife or environmental biology with the potential to engage Southeast students in significant research activities.
- Experience teaching at college/university level as a graduate assistant, instructor or above.
- Demonstrated commitment to collegiality when interacting with others within the University community.
- Demonstrated commitment to working with multi-cultural populations and awareness of issues affecting women and minorities.

As a public regional university (with a graduate mission), Southeast seeks candidates with a commitment to excellent undergraduate (and graduate) education and student success within the framework of the teacher-scholar model.

Applications of instructional technology and pedagogical research are supported through the Center for Scholarship in Teaching and Learning and the Office of Online Learning. Successful candidates will contribute to the development of innovative curricula and delivery strategies, including traditional, blended, and online formats, and participate in initiatives promoting student success, retention, and degree completion.

Departmental Information: Information regarding the Department of Biology can be found at <http://www.semo.edu/biology/>

Compensation: Commensurate with education and experience. The University provides an excellent benefits package including retirement, medical, sick leave, holidays, individual and dependent tuition benefits.

Application Deadline: The position is available fall 2015 and will remain open until filled. To ensure full consideration, applications must be received by December 1, 2014.

 

Required Information: To apply submit the following items via e-mail to facultyjobs@semo.edu or mail to Dana Seabaugh, Employment Specialist, Human Resources, Southeast Missouri State University, One University Plaza, MS3150, Cape Girardeau, MO 63701:

- Letter of interest addressing all position qualifications and how you learned of this position
- Current curriculum vitae
- Statement of Teaching Philosophy
- Statement of Research Interests
- Unofficial copies of transcripts (official transcripts required for employment)
- Name and contact information of three references

University and Regional Facts:

Southeast Missouri State University is a comprehensive regional state university with seven colleges and schools, over 10,000 students, and a faculty and staff of approximately 1,200. Southeast offers 200 areas of study with numerous academic accreditations and is the only university in Missouri to have a separate campus dedicated to art, dance, music and theatre. Southeast, a moderately selective institution, offers baccalaureate, masters and specialist degrees, and participates in joint doctoral programs with the University of Missouri. Its intercollegiate athletics program is classified NCAA Division I and the University is a member of the Ohio Valley Conference. More information about Southeast may be found at: www.semo.edu